

HOW TO MEASURE PROPERLY YOUR PENIS

It is crucial that you spend a reasonable amount of time correctly measuring yourself prior to ordering a cage - too big and the cage will fall off, too small and the cage will cause you severe discomfort and potentially injury. While many manufacturers provide measuring information at the time of purchase, with a ruler, a pen, and a piece of string you can follow these simple steps to get the measurements you need :

1. Have a hot shower and begin as soon as you're finished
2. Take the string and place one end on the top of your penis, then wrap it under your testicles until it meets at the top again.
3. Loosely tie a knot where the string meets and see how it feels - check if it is too tight or too loose.
4. Tighten the knot and leave the string in place for an hour or so, trying to forget about it. The aim here is to see if you feel any discomfort or notice restricted blood flow. If you do notice either of the above, repeat steps 2-4 again until there is no discomfort.
5. Using the pen mark the string at the edge of the knot
6. Remove the string and measure the distance between the marks - repeat a few times and take an average of your measurements and this will give you the size of the ring you require.
7. Now you must measure your shaft
8. Take the ruler and place it on the underside of your shaft, with one end gently resting against your scrotum

9. Take the measurement from your scrotum to the tip
10. You now have the two most important measurements for you cage, again make sure to measure any additional areas the manufacturer suggests
